

Ag Credit Analysis

November 1, 2018
Springfield, IL

Introduction

How can I evaluate loan repayment alternatives for agricultural loans, but do it in a timely and cost-effective manner? The agricultural lending environment has changed dramatically from the 2006-2013 period due to lower commodity prices, but principal payments on term debt for capital purchases made during those more profitable years remain. The result is varying degrees of financial stress among agricultural borrowers. A review of the financial information needed to make informed decisions and a spreadsheet that can be used to evaluate repayment alternatives is covered during this workshop. The spreadsheet will also be used to evaluate amounts of gross revenue needed to breakeven for the farming operation, with and without amounts needed to make principal payments on term debt. The analysis will be conducted for both low and more highly leveraged farming operations. Finally, an additional challenge when lending to many farming operations is what to watch when lending to multi-entity operations, especially during times of financial stress.
